PROCEEDINGS OF THE CITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Gun Club to Be Given Permission to Hold Shooting Tournaments---Park Site Selected---Claims Allowed.

The city board of trustees met in regular weekly session last Monday night.

A communication was received from Attorney J. J. Mazza of San Francisco asking why A. Cinelli was denied a liquor license.

The communication was accepted and ordered filed, and Clerk Smith instructed to inform Mr. Mazza that the license was denied for the reason that Mr. Cinelli's place of business was located opposite a schoolhouse.

A communication was received from San Francisco stating that he and several associates were organizing a gun club and had selected a site in this city where shooting tournaments would be held if the club were given permission to conduct them.

Upon motion of Trustee Healy, seconded by Trustee Cunningham, City Attorney Styles was requested to prepare a resolution granting permission to Mr. Doak and associates to hold shooting tournaments at which either live or clay birds can be used.

Trustees Healy and Cunningham of the special park committee reported that a site for a public park and playground had been selected at a point near the south end of Linden Avenue.

The committee was instructed to confer with W. J. Martin, agent for the local land company, and endeavor to have the land necessary deeded to the city for public park purposes.

The special committee appointed to investigate in the matter of annexing adjoining territory to this city reported progress.

City Garbage Collector Bissett appeared before the board in answer to a summons to explain complaints that had been made as to the manner in which the garbage business had been conducted.

Citizens Case, Veit and Langenbach appeared as complainants.

In answer, Mr. Bissett said the complaints were not serious ones. He had not neglected his work. In one case he had not been notified to collect the garbage, in one there was no gate in the back fence, and in another there was water in the garbage can and he had no means of disposing of water.

He suggested that all citizens who desired garbage hauled away notify him personally or by mail and he would attend to it. Gates should be placed in back fences where lots extended to alleys, thereby avoiding the necessity of carrying garbage through front yards.

Under a health ordinance, all garbage must be carted away either by the official garbage collector, the citizen himself or some one employed by him.

It is stated that garbage is accumulating in many yards, and the health board purposes to have the garbage ordinance enforced.

Trustee Healy of the street committee reported that a faucet with hose had been attached to the city water wagon as instructed by the board at a previous meeting. This was done in order that the trees planted by citizens in this city several weeks ago can be regularly watered.

Claims against the city were allowed, as follows: J. Quinn, labor, $2.50; E. Boretta, labor, $2.50; H. W. Kneese fees, etc., $16.10; H. Murati, labor, $6; C. Hock, labor, $5; Geo. A. Kneese, labor cleaning fire hose, $2; J. Vacarri, same, $2; Henry Stark, labor, $2.50; M. F. Healy, services as street inspector, $30; A. G. Bissett, labor with team and driving water sprinkling wagon, $60; South City Printing Company, printing for the board of health, $5; W. J. Smith, fees and stamps, $14.50; J. L. Wood, labor, $15; W. L. Hickey, fixing culvert grating, $1.50; J. Lucchesi, labor, $1.25; J. CASUALTIES

Clarence Leach, an engineer employed at the National ice plant at Santa Rosa, was badly injured when a large chunk of ice fell upon his head. She poured the contents of the can into the stove and in the explosion that followed, her clothing took fire. She rushed into a bedroom and wrapped her body in bedding, which also caught fire. She then ran into the yard and with a garden hose extinguished the flames. All the upper portion of her body was terribly seared.

SAN FRANCISCO PRODUCE MARKET

Latest Conditions and Prices of Seasonable Products of California

FRUITS.—Cherries, the main seasonable fruit, is in heavy supply and weak in tone. Best Tartarians bring $1.25 and others rule as low as 40¢ a box. Prospects are for further decline.

BERRIES.—Strawberries are coming in from all quarters much in over-ripe condition. Asking prices for crates of 15 baskets are 50¢ to 75¢, but concessions are freely made to get each day's shipment out of the way. Raspberries have become more plentiful and bring $2 a crate. English gooseberries are lower, at 6¢ to 10¢ a pound, as to size and condition.

VEGETABLES.—Asparagus is still coming in freely, since prices have reacted from the depression of last month. Canneries are now paying 2¢ to 3¢ for the same stock that sold at 1¢ then. The supply is about equal to demand at $1.50 to $1.75 a box. New potatoes have had a heavy slump with every dealer over-supplied. There is an excess of small sizes rushed in to get good prices, and these have weakened the market all around. The larger sizes of reds bring $1.25, whites $1.50, with small sold at much lower prices. Old potatoes are still dull, with best River whites at 70¢ to 90¢, Oregon 90¢ to $1.10, Salinas $1.25 to $1.35, Lompoc $1.40 to $1.50. String beans are weak at 6¢ to 7¢ a pound. Peas are very plentiful at $1 to $1.25 for best. Rhubarb continues to come in freely and is weak at preceding price of 75¢ for best. Mexican tomatoes, Texas cucumbers, summer squash, onions and eggplant bring fancy prices.

Onions, new green, bring 40¢ to 60¢ a box; new red, 90¢ to $1 a sack. Old Oregon are plentiful at $1.40 to $1.50 a sack.

DAIRY PRODUCE.—Butter extras have jumped up to 27¢, under brisk demand for storage. The Northern markets, excepting Alaska points, no longer order from San Francisco, and it is becoming evident that the expected slump will not take place and that for storage 25¢ will have to be paid. Portland and Los Angeles hold steadily at our prices and there is no movement between these points. Chicago is also steady at 27¢ and New York at 28¢, with an easier tone to the market.

Eggs are up again to 25¢ here and hold at 26¢ in Los Angeles. Chicago is offering 1 1/2¢ and there are many Eastern coming this way at our ruling prices, especially toward Los Angeles.

HAY.—The new crop of hay is on the market and with very heavy warehouse holdings finds a dull market, but with old prices ruling.

FOUNDERS OF THE CITY OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

THE SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO LAND AND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY designed in its original plan to make of South San Francisco a great manufacturing center. With that object in view, it originally purchased 3500 acres of land in San Mateo County, on the bay front, five miles south of the City of San Francisco. Since the original purchase, the company has added greatly to its holdings by the purchase of large tracts of adjoining lands, giving to it a perfect environment for the complete development of a great manufacturing city. The faith which this Company had in its enterprise has been manifest to everyone by the large expenditure it has made in the development of this property. Every foundation which goes to make a perfect condition for manufacture has been already solidly installed, and is a rapidly growing city; it is a railroad terminal; it is on the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and accessible to all railroads; has deep water communication; owns and operates for its industries a railroad connecting with the Southern Pacific and the water front; has electric street car service from factory to Town, and direct to San Francisco; has an Electric Light and Power Company; owns an independent Water Works, and has an abundance of fresh water for factory and house; has wharves and docks; a perfect sewerage system; a Bank and a Town Hall; and a population of over 3000 people an extensive and fine residence district, where everyone may secure lands at reasonable prices and on favorable terms, as homes for themselves and their families.

FACTORY SITES

can be obtained from the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company on most reasonable terms.

The completion of the Bay Shore Tunnels has placed South San Francisco on the main lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and forty passenger trains per day connect it with the outside world.

With the completion of the Dumbarton Bridge and Cutoff, now rapidly being constructed, South San Francisco will have all railroads which center in San Francisco passing through its midst.

Many industries are already established here, chief of which are the Western Meat Company, the Wool Pullery, the Soap Works, the Baden Brick Company, Pacific Jupiter Steel Company, the Steiger Pottery Works, the W. P. Fuller White Lead Works, the South San Francisco Lumber and Supply Company, and other enterprises, all of which are in full operation to-day. The American Smelting and Refining Company has purchased over 300 acres of land in South San Francisco for the purpose of erecting a great plant, which they estimate will cost upwards of $5,000,000. The Doak Sheet Steel Company has purchased a large tract of land and has already commenced the construction of a large rolling mill. Other factories have recently made purchases, and South San Francisco is plainly destined to fulfill all that its promoters had hoped.

SATURDAY..... MAY 14, 1910

Now that it is reasonably certain that congress will invite the nations to meet at San Francisco in 1915 to celebrate the completion and opening of the Panama canal, the question of interest will be the particular site best suited to make such a meeting of the nations a success, so far as the exposition is concerned, and a benefit to San Francisco as the successful candidate for this national and international honor.

To-day we will consider the site question solely from the point of benefits to San Francisco, and later look it over from the side of exposition success.

Thus far all the sites proposed are either Ocean Shore or Bay Shore sites.

Lake Merced, Twin Peaks, and the Park—Parkside sites, are all three Ocean Shore sites; and the location of the exposition at any one of the three would stimulate the growth of San Francisco on the ocean shore side of the city.

The Bay View and Tanforan sites are Bay Shore sites, and the selection of either would cause the city to grow, extend and develop on its Bay Shore side. The growth of San Francisco oceanward would simply extend and enlarge its residence area.

On the Bay Shore side the wide stretches of level low lying lands, from Islais Creek to San Bruno, with rail and water transportation at hand, provide the room required for the future expansion of the city's manufacturing industries, as well as its wholesale business and freight yards.

The city's growth southward on the Bay Shore means the extension of San Francisco's water front, with enlarged and improved harbor facilities.

The opening of the Panama Canal will cover the Pacific Ocean with the merchant fleets of all the nations, and San Francisco will become its chief mart. San Francisco's waterfront and harbor, with its docks crowded with the shipping of the commercial world, will, of necessity, be rapidly extended from North Beach to San Bruno, and southward.

With the exposition located on the Bay Shore, whether at Bay

View or Tanforan, a deep water harbor will be created at the exposition gates, and the first steps taken for the enlargement of San Francisco's harbor facilities, to meet the impending pressing demand of the world for more room.

The San Francisco News Letter of last week published an article under the heading of "Good Roads Movement on the Peninsula," which does this city serious injustice, through an evident misapprehension of the facts.

The News Letter is right when it declares that the road down the peninsula between the end of the boulevard and Millbrae is so bad that it could not be worse.

The News Letter is however altogether wrong in asserting that "Most, if not all, of the wretched road lies within the far flung corporate limits of South San Francisco."

The end of the boulevard is at a point on the old Mission road, about three hundred feet above Baden station. From the end of the boulevard at the aforesaid point to Millbrae is five miles. These five miles of bad road are on the old Mission road. These five miles are all county road save and except the northerly end, extending from the end of the boulevard to a point a short distance below Baden station, which latter point is exactly one mile north of the northerly line of the New California Jockey Club's 110-acre tract, known as "Tanforan." The portion of the bad road complained of which lies within the corporate limits of South San Francisco is less than one-half mile in length, to be exact, it is very near three-eighths of one mile. In other words, the News Letter's statement regarding South San Francisco's responsibility in this matter is over nine tenths error.

The News Letter is also in error in crediting any report that charges the people or the trustees of this municipality with the intent and plan to allow that portion of the old Mission county road within the corporate limits and jurisdiction of South San Francisco to fall into disrepair, and thereby divert traffic from the end of the boulevard, and thence to the Fourteen-mile House.

The facts are that the first money available for street or road work, since the incorporation of this city, came into the city treasury about September of last year. The city trustees could have used a portion of this money to repair the three-eighths of one mile of the old Mission road within the city limits, it is true, but the four and five-eighths miles belonging to the county would have remained in bad condition, as the county supervisor was at that time without funds sufficient to do that work. The city trustees took prompt action to do the next best thing. They let a contract to macadamize Grand avenue from the Boulevard to the San Bruno road. This work was only recently completed, for the reason that it was late in the season when the contract was let, and the winter rains made it impossible to complete the work sooner.

The effect of this improvement is to open a decent road for the business of this city and its factories by wagon with Colma and the north end of this township, as well as with the City of San Francisco. The San Bruno road from Grand avenue to the Fourteen-mile House is in fairly good condition, so that auto travel from San Francisco down the peninsula has a passable route, which will serve until the old Mission road can be again put in good condition.

Any sensible business man familiar with the facts, which are as herein stated, will approve the course of our city trustees.

The ambition attributed to our people of "aspiring to main line popularity and prosperity," is, we take it, altogether laudable; although this city has little to desire in that direction.

South San Francisco is now on the main line of railroad from San Francisco down the peninsula. As to wagon and auto travel, the route through this city is very little if any longer than the route down the old Mission road, and when the latter is improved, as it soon will be, we predict that a majority of the auto travel will prefer the line down Grand Avenue through this city, as being little if any longer, and as possessing very much better grades.

Before any money was received from taxes for street or road work the city trustees used $300 of money received for local licenses to repair a portion of the boulevard within the city limits.

The direct primary law will have its first test in California this year. All parties should seek to make the new law effective.

Party nomination for the primary election is an innovation. It will be easy for any aspirant to secure three per cent of his party on his petition. In some instances there may be a multiplicity of aspirants for a particular office. Such results will favor the chances of an incumbent seeking renomination, for the reason that the man in office may be counted upon as having personal adherents in every portion of his district or county, whilst other aspirants are not usually so fortunate. The one thing essential to make the direct primary a practical working success is that the voters shall know the candidates well enough to be able to choose intelligently at the primary election.

This could be brought about at a moderate cost of time and money by a primary campaign with public meetings in every part of a district or county at which meetings all party candidates would be invited to be present and declare their views to the electors. Such campaign and meetings to be under the auspices of the county central committee.

F. G. King, a member of the Contra Costa highway commission, was in Stockton to-day gathering data on the San Joaquin highway system and taking pointers for the benefit of his county. Contra Costa expects to call a bond election in July to improve 135 miles of roadway. The amount of the issue is yet to be determined. King called on the San Joaquin highway commission and was shown every courtesy.—Telegraph dispatch.

THE ENTERPRISE would suggest that the members of the San Mateo county board of supervisors inspect these modern highways, then get busy and appoint a highway commission.

"Halley's comet travels at the rate of 1956 miles a minute," says the Atlanta Georgian. Almost as fast, indeed, as a real spicy piece of gossip.

The news that a Pennsylvania woman burned up her husband's wooden leg to keep him from going to a saloon is another sign that pretty soon the drinking men may not have a leg to stand on.

A Chicago man wants a divorce from his wife because she drinks two cases of beer per day. That woman should have married a Milwaukee man.

GEORGE FIFTH PROCLAIMED KING

Messages of Alexandra and of the King to the People

George V was proclaimed King throughout the empire on Monday with all the traditional ceremony of centuries. In Dublin the Ulster King at Arms read the proclamation in the presence of Lord Aberdeen, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and Lady Aberdeen.

The country is now beginning to resume its normal life, the King's earnest desire being that, except on the day of the funeral of Edward VII, which is fixed for May 20th, the national mourning should inflict no unnecessary sacrifices upon the people.

Premier Asquith and Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, arrived in London. Other members of the Cabinet and officials holding important positions under the Government are hastening to the capital. King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway were met at the station by King George and Queen Mary, and young Prince Olaf threw his arms around his uncle's neck. The party drove immediately to Buckingham Palace, where they viewed the body of the late King. A brief religious service was held in the chapel.

Ancient Ceremony Repeated.

Sharply at the stroke of 9, four heralds, arrayed in mediaeval uniforms of scarlet, heavily braided with gold, mounted the balcony of Friary Court at St. James' Palace, where Queen Victoria presented herself to the people upon the opening of her memorable reign, and blew a fanfare through their long silver trumpets.

The precincts of the palace by this time were a great mass of people, many of whom could secure but the briefest glimpse of the proceedings. The balconies and roofs of the adjacent palace, which had been draped with red cloth, were reserved for the notables, all of whom were in the deepest mourning.

At the Gates of the Ancient City.

The ceremony here was of long duration and more elaborate, the City of London to this day retaining its ancient privilege of barring the entrance of the King's men to the square mile in which its officers rule.

In place of the barred gates of olden times, a red silken rope placed across the street halted the procession. Coming to a standstill the trumpeters sounded three loud blasts announcing the approach of the officers of arms.

QUEEN MAUD OF NORWAY

Youngest Sister of King of England

The City Marshal, riding forward, challenged the approach of the procession with the cry, "Halt! Who goes there?" The reply, "The officer of arms, who demands entrance to the city to proclaim his royal majesty's accession," came from the pursuivant.

The Lord Mayor, having been informed of the presence of the royal herald, and, having given his permission for entrance to the city, Rouge Dragon stepped across the boundary and handed the chief magistrate the Privy Council's order that the proclamation be made. The throng that crowded the narrow street stood in silence watching the proceedings.

The Lord Mayor then alighted from his carriage and read the proclamation and declared that "Our high and mighty Prince George has now become our only lawful and righteous liege lord, George V," following the words with the cry, "God save the King."

The words were caught up by the crowd and swelled to a mighty chorus that filled the strand and Fleet street.

Messages to the People.

While the rulers and representatives of foreign nations are assembling in

PRINCESS VICTORIA

London for the obsequies of King Edward, the various necessary formalities incident to the sad event are being gradually completed.

The widowed Queen has sent a touching personal message to the nation, written in unassuming style and recalling similar intimate messages Queen Victoria was in the habit of addressing to her people.

King George has addressed messages to the navy and army, expressing his thanks for their loyalty and devotion and his solicitude for the efficiency of both services.

A message also has gone from the King to the Indian princes and people expressive of his gratitude for their sympathy.

A THOUSAND BODIES TAKEN FROM RUINS

Rescuers Believe Death List Is Heavier Than Estimated

More than 1000 dead have been taken from the ruins of Cartago, Costa Rica. No one is allowed within the precincts of the devastated city except the Red Cross workers and gangs of soldiers and volunteers employed in clearing away the debris, removing the bodies and dynamiting the dangerous buildings. Most of the survivors of the earthquake are now at San Jose. Medicine and food from the American war ships are being rushed to Port Limon, but the condition of those who still remain around the city is such that extraordinary measures must be taken to provide assistance and shelter for them.

Even in San Jose the residents for the most part are living in tents and wooden structures, fearing to occupy their homes, as the earth tremors continue.

No living person has been taken from the ruins in the last few days, and although a thousand dead have been removed, it is known that there are many still beneath the broken walls and timbers. Because of general panic, the various organizations engaged in the work of relief find it difficult to reach all. Many survivors are still hungry and helpless. The village of Cat is reported totally destroyed.

Mexico has contributed a large sum of money to aid the victims, and contributions are coming in from other sources.

The nature of the earthquake that destroyed Cartago is now being discussed and the general testimony of those who suffered from it goes to show that it resembled an explosion more than the ordinary seismic movement, which has been felt throughout the republic during the last two or three weeks.

President Taft, as president of the American National Red Cross Society, made a strong appeal for contributions to relieve the distress of the earthquake sufferers in Costa Rica. Contributions the appeal states, may be sent to the National Red Cross, Washington, or to the local Red Cross treasurer.

United States Charge Monroe at San Jose cabled that the people are in great distress, but the Government feels some hesitation in asking aid from other nations, which is assumed to mean that Government will accept contributions gladly. The House authorized the Secretary of War to loan blankets, tents and other stores in possession of the Isthmian Canal Commission to the sufferers.

ROOSEVELT RECEIVED QUIETLY AT BERLIN

Will Probably Be Appointed a Special Representative

President Taft, in all probability, will designate Theodore Roosevelt as a special Ambassador to represent the United States at the funeral of King Edward. He said he would take the matter up with Secretary Knox when he returns to Washington.

Taft said he was anxious to appoint Colonel Roosevelt to represent this Government. As yet he has taken no step in that direction, however, as up to the time he left Washington no official notification had been received by the Washington Government as to the date of the funeral.

President Taft is not conversant with the precedents as to such occasions, but if a special representative is called for by the proprieties and Roosevelt will accept the designation he will be named by the President.

London Arrival of Roosevelt.

If Roosevelt adheres to his traveling program he will arrive in London on May 16th. If Roosevelt is in London on the day of the funeral he will be expected to attend but the question has already arisen as to what his status would be upon that occasion. He could hardly be treated as a private individual, and the public would certainly expect that he be given a place among the notables. The press repeats the suggestion that the American Government appoint Colonel Roosevelt its special representative at the funeral.

Roosevelt Reaches Berlin.

Theodore Roosevelt reached the railway station in Berlin 30 minutes ahead of the Kaiser's gorgeous imperial guard. When the escort of honor reached the station the Roosevelt party had already taken taxicabs for the American embassy.

The Kaiser was angry at the Baron von Schoen, minister of foreign affairs, because of the miscarriage of the reception plans. The result was that an enthusiastic but somewhat subdued crowd welcomed Colonel Roosevelt to the German capital.

Roosevelt's special train arrived on time after it had been reported 30 minutes late. It was for this reason that the imperial guards were delayed in reaching the station. The former President and the German ruler met for the first time. Roosevelt lunched at the Potsdam palace. The Kaiser's reception was very cordial.

TO BE DUKE OF CORNWALL

Prince Edward Will Be Called the Duke of Cornwall.

Prince Edward, the heir to the throne, will for the present be styled the Duke of Cornwall and Rothesay. Later he will be created Prince of Wales. He succeeds forthwith to the Duchy of Cornwall with a clear income of $400,000 yearly, which will accumulate until he becomes of age, giving him an independent fortune of $2,500,000. It was the income from this source that enabled the late King to purchase the Sandringham estate.

CHINESE AGAIN RIOTING

Inland Mission at Yung Chow Destroyed.

Word has reached Chang Sha, China, that riots have occurred at Yuen Chow, which is 220 miles from Chang Sha, and that the inland mission has been destroyed. No details are given, as the telegraph wires have been cut.

This new outbreak of the anti-foreign movement in the interior of China indicates that the Chang Sha disturbance was not purely local, as early reports indicated, but was due to more deep-seated causes. This latest news will cause renewed anxiety among the missionary societies which have stations in remote Chinese districts.

Libel Case in Supreme Court.

The case of the United States versus the Press Publishing Company (New York World), alleging libel of President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Charles P. Taft and others in connection with the purchase by the Government of title to the Panama Canal, has been docketed in the United States Supreme Court.

A BRIEF COURTSHIP.

It Is Said to Be the Shortest That Ever Occurred in England.

By ANTOINETTE PERKINS.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The case of Mary Aikenside, an English lass of fifteen who lived in the sixteenth century, is a strange condensed love story. Mary was at this susceptible age when the Roundheads and Cavaliers were fighting for supremacy in England. Her father, Sir Thomas Aikenside, was a country gentleman living on his estate in the county of Essex. He took no part in the struggle, having been educated to respect kingly authority, but not approving the course of Charles I.

One evening a party of Cavaliers consisting of 150 horsemen, moving from one position to another, stopped at the Aikenside estate and, finding plenty of water convenient, decided to bivouac there for the night. They were the first soldiers that Mary Aikenside had ever seen. She kept her great eyes fixed on them in wonder. To her they appeared as the first Spanish warriors who visited America appeared to the untutored savage.

The men made their campfires in the grounds surrounding the house, but Sir Thomas invited the officers to occupy whatever spare beds he possessed. This offer they declined, but consented to sleep in the spacious wainscoted hall, lighted by logs burning in the great fireplace. Among these officers was young Egbert Booth, the son of a British peer. Young Booth was but eighteen years old and held the lowest commissioned rank. His portrait, painted at that time, hangs today in the gallery of his descendant, the Earl of Devereux. It is in the dress of that period, the breastplate and the long curls hanging over it in negligent profusion being especially conspicuous. The face is a marvel of beauty—not a sign of a beard, large black eyes, bespeaking a noble spirit within; exquisitely cut lips, the whole inclosed within that perfect oval only to be found in youth.

Mary Aikenside saw Egbert Booth, but he did not see her. A new and to her unintelligible sensation came pouring in upon her. She had never before been swayed by even the slightest zephyr of such an emotion. Yet now it swayed her soul. Her tranquil past with its mild affections was dwarfed by this new life that had suddenly sprung up within her. The youth she saw from her lattice carelessly walking among the campfires had in an instant become to her a matter of life and death.

The next morning when Mary looked out upon the yard below her window she saw nothing of the soldiers. A number of smoldering campfires was all that remained to tell that they had been there. In imagination Mary saw the little figure of Egbert Booth, booted and spurred, his left hand incased in a gauntlet resting on the hilt of his sword.

While the family were at breakfast shots were heard in the distance. "They have met a band of Roundheads," said Sir Thomas, "who are disputing their passage."

Mary turned white as the breakfast cloth.

For several hours there was firing, with an occasional shout or a cry, the sounds gradually coming nearer. "Our friends are being driven," remarked Sir Thomas, who stood on his porch listening.

Mary, who stood by him, gave a smothered gasp.

Then down the road poured the Cavaliers, the Roundheads pursuing them. The sounds receded and were at last lost in the distance.

Sir Thomas mounted his horse to go and see if he could find any of the wounded that he might succor. He was gone an hour, but returned alone. The family gathered round him to hear what he had to say.

"The Roundheads," he said, "have stopped not a mile from here. They are very bitter against their enemies. They say that during the fight the Cavaliers dispatched a number of the parliament men who had been wounded and who called for quarter. The Roundheads have taken a dozen prisoners. They are intending to shoot a portion of them in reprisal for the dispatching of their wounded comrades."

"Father," said Mary in an agony, "did you see the prisoners?"

"I did, my darling."

"Was there one among them a very young man, straight, tall and slender?"

"I saw such a one, the only youth among them. Mary, what means this agitation? What is this boy to you? Have you seen him before?"

But Mary had no voice to reply. Thinking her ill, her father laid her on a lounge and went for a restorative.

Mary lay for awhile in what those about her considered a stupor. It was no stupor; she was keenly alive. But it suited her purpose to avoid being questioned. The day faded, and when the candles were lighted she arose from her couch and, telling her parents that she had recovered, with a firm step went upstairs to her chamber.

At midnight, when all were asleep, Mary went to the room of her brother and without awakening him took a suit of his clothes from a closet. Half an hour later, dressed as a youth, her hair curled to fall over a broad lace collar and with plumed hat, she left the house and under the starlight hastened down the road. Near daylight she reached the camp of the parliament troop and, crawling inside the lines, lay herself down near the prisoners.

When the sun came up the captain of the guard counted the group of Cavaliers who had been intrusted to his care the evening before and was surprised to find one more than should be. He reported the circumstance to the commander of the force, who merely snapped back:

"Well, make it five in thirteen."

As soon as the command had brokenfasted the prisoners were marched out into a field near by. Thirteen bits of paper were put in a helmet, seven blanks and five marked with a skull and bones. Then from a hat all were required to draw a number. The prisoners were then to draw from the helmet in order of the numbers they had drawn from the hat. Those drawing skulls and bones were to be shot.

Mary Aikenside stepped up to the hat to draw her number. The officer in charge saw her and said:

"What are you doing here? You are nothing but a child."

"I'm here with the rest," replied the girl.

The officer was about to order her to stand aside when he recalled his commander's words, "Make it five in thirteen." He suffered her to draw a number, and she drew No. 4.

Then began the drawing from the helmet.

No. 3 was the first man to draw a skull and bones. His knees gave way beneath him as he tottered back from the helmet. Mary's turn came next.

"I protest against that boy's drawing!" exclaimed young Egbert Booth.

The commander paid no attention to him, and Mary drew. Her paper was a blank.

While the drawing was going on Mary stepped up beside Egbert Booth and slipped her blank paper in his hand. He looked at her, then at the paper, and handed it back to her. She gave him a look of mute appeal, but it did not move him. He was unwilling to stand on any other basis than that of his comrades. Mary's object had failed. She sank back out of sight to hide her distress. When Booth went up to the helmet to draw she watched him with eager eyes. He drew, turned and held up the paper to the boy who had befriended him. It was a blank.

Mary fell in a faint.

The prisoners who had drawn death heads were placed in a line and a party of musketeers were about to fire upon them when a shout was heard in an adjoining wood, and a band of Cavaliers came charging over the field. The Roundheads, surprised and outnumbered, took to flight. The "skull and bones" men clung together in an embrace. Then Egbert Booth turned to Mary.

"Whence come you, boy?" he asked in a kindly voice.

"I'm Sir Thomas Aikenside's son."

"Indeed! You are none of ours."

"No. I came here!"

The sentence was never finished. The commanding officer of the Cavaliers rode up and, seeing Mary, asked if the king needed to rob the cradle for recruits. Mary took advantage of the remark to tell him that she was a temporary volunteer and desired permission to go to her home. An hour later, having watched the house for an opportunity, she stole inside and up to her room without being discovered. Indeed, the household were out in every direction searching for her.

Mary had barely time to assume her own maidenly apparel when they began to return from their fruitless search. Then she heard voices below.

"I am beholden, sir, to a son of yours for a great favor. I come to thank him."

"Indeed, sir!"

"Yes, he was with us this morning in our camp."

"I have but one son, and he has not been in your camp."

Mary left her room and went downstairs. Blushing scarlet, she joined the group, among whom was young Egbert Booth. On seeing her he started.

"I see my would be preserver," he said, "in a girl's apparel."

"You see my daughter," said Sir Thomas, "in her own apparel."

Mary stood with her eyes bent on the ground.

"Explain!" said her father in a severe tone.

Then Mary haltingly told her story.

In an hour's time Egbert Booth was betrothed to Mary Aikenside. The courtship is said to have been the shortest that ever occurred in merrie England.

EXPOSITION PROGRESS

Californians Are Encouraged by Preliminary Poll.

Representative Ka-n of San Francisco and Representative Smith, whose district embraces San Diego, went hand in hand before Speaker Cannon to convince him that California is pulling together now in the matter of the Panama Exposition.

Uncle Joe gave them his blessing and also the assurance of active assistance in the enactment of the resolution designating San Francisco as the exposition city. There is nothing halfhearted about the support of the Speaker, and its value is of course important.

Something of a canvass of the House membership was conducted and the Californians have become highly optimistic. The truth is that they had been pessimistic over the prospects of their resolution, but the result of work has changed their attitude completely.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs, to which the resolution was referred, announced that it would give the California campaigners a hearing.

PROF. JORDAN'S VACATION

Dr. Jordan to Spend Vacation in Europe.

After forty years of close application to the educational work to which he has devoted his life, Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford Jr. University, will leave for Europe at the end of the present academic year on an extended vacation, the first in a quarter of a century. Part of his time will be spent in recreation at the resorts, and the remainder will be devoted to work in the interest of the National Zoological Congress and the International School of Peace. He will resume his duties as head of the university at the beginning of the second semester of the 1910-11 college year. During the absence of Dr. Jordan, the duties of the president will be assumed by Professor J. C. Branner, vice-president of the university.

DEATHS OF NOTED PEOPLE.

Mrs. Eleanor G. Howells, wife of William Dean Howells, the author, died at her home in New York after a brief illness. She and Mr. Howells were married in 1862. Besides her husband, a daughter and a son survive.

Louis Hickman, a wealthy land owner of Sausalito, died at his home from a complication of diseases. He was 77 years old, and had been a resident of California since the early fifties. His wife survives. At the time of his death he possessed upwards of 25,000 acres of land in Stanislaus county, practically every acre of which is under cultivation. Twenty-five years ago Hickman moved to Los Angeles, where he lived for about fifteen years, and then went to Sausalito to spend his declining days. He was one of the originators of irrigation in the Stanislaus district and frequently came to the aid of settlers, who, during the early days of irrigation projects, were frequently in need of money. Hickman gradually amassed wealth, and at the time of his death was rated as being worth millions.

Captain John D. Wulzen, a pioneer of California, died in his Alameda home, at the ripe age of nearly eighty-five years. He was captain in command of the San Francisco Schuetzen Verein at the time when President Lincoln was assassinated, and San Francisco was menaced by a frenzied mob. Captain Wulzen, without waiting for orders, placed his command at the service of the civic authorities of San Francisco. His company being the only organization of citizen soldiers in San Francisco at that time, his offer was eagerly accepted.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRADE

Agents of the District Attorney Actually Purchase White Slaves.

District Attorney Whitman has obtained positive proof that it is possible to buy girls for immoral purposes in New York. Four young girls who were purchased by special agents of the District Attorney are in the care of his office, Mr. Whitman announced, and three persons accused of violating the law against procuring are under arrest.

Two women, one a graduate of Smith College, and the other of Radcliffe, and a man formerly connected with the Government service, were employed as agents. In negotiating for the purchase of the girls they represented themselves as procurers for houses in Seattle and Juneau, Alaska.

Monte Carlo Season Piles Up Profits.

The receipts from the Casino at Monte Carlo during the financial year which closed on March 31st are to be published shortly. They will show an increase of $600,000 over the previous year. Shareholders expect to receive $70 per share, or $5 more than last year's dividend. This advance is the more remarkable since extra expense has been incurred, including the erection of new buildings, special fetes at the opening of the Oceanographical Museum, and the engagement of M. Rougier, the flying man. The Casino shares are nominally worth $100, but the present market price is about $1140 each.

What might have been a serious accident happened on San Mateo avenue Tuesday afternoon, when a horse tied in front of Della Maggiori's grocery became frightened at a passing bicycle. The buggy it was attached to was upset and two little children sitting in it thrown out, but luckily not injured.

A Chicago minister declares that many Chicago women are better equipped to raise h— and get their pictures in the papers than to rear children and get on as home-makers. But wait until women get their rights and the suffraget pulpit turns loose on the married man who won't go home till morning!

"A physician says that work kills many people," observes the Augusta Herald. Our contemporary is feeling a trifle spring feverish we imagine.

Simpson Buffington Earle.

EARLE.—Simpson Buffington Earle was born in Fall River, Massachusetts, December 21, 1839, and died in South San Francisco, San Mateo County, April 30, 1910. In 1865 he was united in marriage to Almira Randall, who has preceded him to that better country by some ten years. In 1867 he came to Ione, Amador County, California, where with his father he became interested in the mines and remained there over twenty years, and in 1890 he moved to San Jose and made his home at Coyote, where he engaged in fruit raising. All who know anything of the history and struggles of the Methodist Church at Coyote will undoubtedly understand something of the loyalty and devotion of Mr. and Mrs. Earle, and how much of the life and perpetuation of that little church owes to their efforts. Mr. Earle had a large family, four sons and four daughters, only two of whom remain to mourn his departure—Mrs. Van Valen who is the organist in the Methodist Church in San Mateo, and Mrs. J. O. Snyder of South San Francisco, with whom Mr. Earle has lived for the past eight years, and who watched over him lovingly and tenderly during his last illness. As soon as Mr. Earle came to this city he became interested in church life, and how anxiously did he await the erection of the Methodist Church, and with what earnestness and devotion did he enter into its life. How keenly interested in the spiritual and financial welfare of the church did he become. How artistically and beautifully did he decorate our church with flowers of his own planting, which were of the richest hue and sweetest fragrance. How we shall miss his presence and inspiration in the audience—his genial smile, his hearty handshake and loving counsel were benedictions to our church life. He was faithful, and did all he could in his own quiet way to hasten the coming of the Master's kingdom in South San Francisco.

Few has God blessed with such a long and useful life. He reached the allotted time given to man, and although never surpassingly strong, he was ever actively engaged in the various pursuits of life, and until within the last few months of his existence he was busy around the house doing little things, but more especially in his garden among the flowers of which he was justly proud. For some time past he realized that his health was failing, and about three months ago he was confined to the house and most of that time to his bed. During the last few weeks of his illness it was my pleasure and privilege to visit him quite often, and ever found him patient, submissive, with faith strong, and hope bright, although at times racked with pain, he could say, "Not my will but Thine be done." On the morning of April the 30th the end came despite the efforts of the best medical skill and the ministrations of loving hearts and gentle hands, he passed to his reward, to that land where there is no pain, and where the inhabitants never grow old. The funeral services were conducted in the residence at 10:30 a. m. Monday, May 2d, by the Methodist minister (Rev. Ralston), assisted by a long and dear friend of the deceased, the Rev. Kirkbride of San Mateo. Mrs. Varney of San Mateo sang very sweetly and sympathetically, and the interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery, San Jose, where he was gently laid by the side of his dear wife then we all felt and said—

Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest,
Lay down thy head upon the Saviour's breast;
We love thee well, but Jesus loves thee best—
Good night! Good night! Good night!
—REV. D. RALSTON.
